Dear Arjun and Sandhya,

I am writing to apply for the position of Asst. Experience Coordinator at Indiahikes. As you can see from my CV, I presently run and manage a not-for-profit organisation called Precious Paws Foundation, along with my supporting brands - Petzvilla, Pet Palate, Bottled Up, and Monkey Oven.

I see this opportunity with Indiahikes as a way to learn, explore, and share the world of trekking in a way I have seen on my recent treks (some with Indiahikes, and some with others.)

As a single parent and owner of various businesses, often times I had missed taking a step back and viewing in awe the beauty of this world and the nature around us. My first trek opened my eyes and my heart to the world of trekking and the numerous values it instils not only among adults, but children as well.

My younger son, who is all of 8 years and I, together, have built so many memories and learnt so much about the World around us on these treks, and I would like nothing more than to extend and include as many others as possible in this wonderful journey through the mountains with me.

My previous experience in communicating with people from all walks of life, campaigning to change mindsets about Indian dogs, and being detail-oriented and focused on the goals of my NGO has taught me to view the world with objective eyes, and power through task lists strategically to get the best results - which I believe would give me an edge for this role.

It's only been a year since I have started trekking, and I feel so passionately about this journey, that I have no intentions of looking back. From hikes in Southern India, to treks in Uttarakhand, I have grabbed every opportunity in 2021 to get my mountain mode on.

With Indiahikes, I hope to further fire this passion, learn the best practices in trekking, and share this magnificent world with everyone around me.
